About me

I am a fourth-year Software Engineering student at Victoria University. Some of my other passions include: yachting, canoe polo, skiing, and gaming. As well as spending a large amount of time completing university projects I develop and work on some of my own personal projects and balance this with spending time training for national and international regattas as part of the Wellington Youth Sailing Trust Youth Scheme.

Review

Alice approaches Wonderland as an anthropologist, but maintains a strong sense of noblesse oblige that comes with her class status. She has confidence in her social position, education, and the Victorian virtue of good manners. Alice has a feeling of entitlement, particularly when comparing herself to Mabel, whom she declares has a "poky little house," and no toys. Additionally, she flaunts her limited information base with anyone who will listen and becomes increasingly obsessed with the importance of good manners as she deals with the rude creatures of Wonderland. Alice maintains a superior attitude and behaves with solicitous indulgence toward those she believes are less privileged.
